

Between Winslow (east)
and Flagstaff (west)

Note on Alignments:

The green route is the path of the National Old Trails Road and probable first alignment of US 66, though it is unproven. If so, it was bypassed in the early 1930s with the first paved route (red), part of which was realigned (orange) on the right side of the map. The orange route and most of the red route were later adopted by eastbound I-40.

Note on Culverts:

The three culverts on this map were built in 1949 and likely part of improvements made when the orange route was implemented.

Note:
The WB I-40 bridge here was built in 1970. The EB bridge was built in 2010, replacing the 1940s orange route bridge.

A drainage structure of undetermined type was once part of the red route at Babbitt's Tank, as seen on this 1954 aerial photograph. No trace of it remains.
